

MALCOLM L. MCHARG, MD

Division of Neurology
Abington — Jefferson Health Physicians

A Chestnut Hill native, Dr. McHarg received his undergraduate degree from Haverford College and his medical degree from Hahnemann University. He completed an internship and residency in pediatrics at the North Shore Hospital on Long Island, and his neurology residency at Albert Einstein College of Medicine in

New York City included pediatric neurology. This was followed by a year of specialty training in electroencephalography (EEG) and epilepsy. A significant part of his practice is dedicated to the care of children. He sees patients of all ages and practices general neurology with a special interest in epilepsy. Dr. McHarg is board certified in neurology with special competence in child neurology. Dr. McHarg joined the Neurology Group in 1991.

The Neurology Group is dedicated to the practice of comprehensive neurological care. Founded originally in Norristown in 1959, the group includes board-certified neurologists and a neuro- psychologist. Each physician has his/her own subspecialty areas of interest and also practices general neurology. Specialty areas include: Peripheral nerve and neuromuscular disease, cognitive disorders, neuro-ophthalmology, epilepsy and child neurology. The Neurology Group provides neurological care for patients at its Norristown, Collegeville and Flourtown offices.

Abington's Division of Neurology provides sub-specialty care for patients who suffered a stroke, with epilepsy, multiple sclerosis, gait disorders, cognitive impairment, Parkinson's disease, neuropathy and headaches.

The Neurosciences Institute at Abington Hospital — Jefferson Health provides comprehensive expertise in the diagnosis and treatment of neurological conditions. An evolution in services and the growth in the depth of the physicians on the neurosciences team have put us at the forefront in the treatment of brain, spinal cord and peripheral nerve disorders.
